

For more information at the NIH Clinical Center contact Patient Recruitment and Public Liaison Office (PRPL) 800-411-1222 ext TTY8664111010 firstname.lastname@example.org|Ć|Kazan State Medical University||Recruiting|Ć|Tartar Republic, Russian Federation|Ć|Principal Investigator:||John D Heiss, M.D.||National Institute of Neurological Disorders and Stroke (NINDS)|<|end_of_text|>Accounts of Debates in the House of Commons, March-April 1731, Supplementary to the Diary of the First Earl of EgmontĆD. W. Hayton (notes)ĆJohn Perceval (1685âĖ1748), 1st Viscount Perceval and (from 1733) 1st Earl of Egmont, was an assiduous recorder of his own life and times. His diaries, published by the Historical Manuscripts Commission from manuscripts in the British Library, are the best source for parliamentary debates at Westminster in the 1730s. For the years 1730-1733, when Perceval sat in the Commons (as an Irish peer) they are remarkably full. His practice seems to have been to prepare two versions (presumably on the basis of notes taken