

, dr. j, john elway, terry bradshaw, among many others) I work full time as a graphic artist for a large screenprinting company while free lancing for other companies and publishers, such as doing clipart for digital solutions in tempe, az. A lot of my recent work reflects my love for ancient history, mostly rome and greece. most of my clipart is done in my comicbook style. i enjoy almost anything creative which has lead me to try many challenges such as designing basketball courts, statues, balloons, logos, portraits, billboards and banners, a little of everything really. I hope everyone will enjoy my prints and thank you for stopping by my gallery.

By Alister Doyle, Environment Correspondent

OSLO — Global warming is adding new threats to marine life in the almost land-locked Baltic Sea, where fish are already struggling in polluted, brackish waters, a leading expert said on Wednesday.

The Baltic Sea is already in bad shape, life there is in a very delicate balance, Hans von Storch, a professor at the Institute of Coastal Research in Germany who chairs a group of 80 scientists from 12 nations studying the Baltic, told Reuters
